. . For a short time after the Battle of Geonosis, Jedi Master Yoda believed in the Force and the Republic. In his time, the Republic and the Jedi Order were working together against the threat of the Yuuzhan Vong. He served as the head of the Jedi Council until he was ordered to leave the Galactic Senate and retire into seclusion. This was shortly after the fall of Coruscant and the takeover of the galaxy by the enemy. He and the other Jedi Knights were ordered to the forest planet of Ossus to train in the ways of the Force, and for him to learn the abilities of the Force Ghost, which he did. But, he was older than most of the Jedi, and was a Force Ghost by his own free will. He also had a personal bond with Obi-Wan Kenobi, which he has explored since their time as a Jedi and a Padawan. 9th Republic Commando Squad Tragically, Yoda was mortally wounded by a clone trooper that was using Force mind tricks on him. The trooper used the last words of Yoda to re-frame his own actions by saying "you would not have done that" to him. Yoda, who was never a killer, took a few steps towards the trooper, and deflected the trooper's blow with his lightsaber. With a swift one-two combo of his lightsaber and a Force push, he sent the trooper careening out of the cave. Yoda then looked up at Obi-Wan, who was standing nearby, with a sad expression, and said, "Even a Jedi must die." He then Force-ghosted, right into Obi-Wan's mind. He taught Obi-Wan the ways of the Force, including the use of the Force ghost. He was saddened by the demise of the Jedi Order, because he truly believed in the ideals of the Republic, and he was looking for a way to help make sure the people of the Republic didn't go the way of the Jedi. He made Obi-Wan promise not to tell anyone about him, but to keep this and his death a secret. Obi-Wan agreed, and they parted. He made contact with Mace Windu who was living on Ossus, to try and make sure he could help him in this new mission. He was surprised to see Windu living on Ossus, when he had thought he was long dead. He made Windu promise not to tell anyone what happened.
